

February 20th Meeting

Establishing Food Allergen Thresholds

The next Washington DC Section of the Institute of Food Technologists meeting will be held on February 20th from 2:00 – 4:00 pm at Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP (1111 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20004; nearest metro stations are Metro Center and Federal Triangle). Map it. Check in with security as you enter the building.

The program features key experts who will examine and summarize the latest research and considerations related to establishing regulatory thresholds for major food allergens. The program will discuss issues related to and industry’s response to the recent FDA request for comments and information regarding the initiation of a risk assessment for establishing food allergen thresholds (FDA-2012-N-0711).

Speakers for this session include:

- Alison Kretser, ILSI North America
- Anthony Pavel, Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP
- Joe Baumert, Food Allergy and Resource Program, University of Nebraska

The cost is for the event is $20 (non-IFT members), $15 (members), or $5 (students). To RSVP please pay by credit card using the Eventbrite “register here” link below.

Register Here

Questions or comments? Email Taylor C. Wallace.